

Isabella hadn't always been the driven, confident, and bright woman she is today. However, determined to change herself for the better, she began thinking of ways to better herself.

She began to work out and continue to push herself more and more.

However, she was still not happy...I mean, she had no one to share her journey with, or talk to about fitness...

So, she'd decided to try going to the gym...

She eventually made some friends at the gym, and, one evening, whilst jogging with one of her friends, she mentioned an app she recently heard about and wanted to try out.

Curious about the app her friend had told her about, she decided she'd join along with her so they could meet others and have fun doing what they love.

After a few months of using the app, Isabella has made so many more friends, created a team for her and her friends, and participated in some games against other teams as well. The team, "Rising Stars", became much more than just Isabella and her friends, but several other women from her state. They play casually, but also, hope one day, they can start something professional. With their winning streak still running, I don't think it'll be long before that becomes a reality.

Storyboard for Isabella Hernandez

By Elizabeth Frick

Isabella hadn't always been the driven, confident, and bright woman she is today. However, determined to change herself for the better, she began thinking of ways to better herself.

She began to work out and continue to push herself more and more.

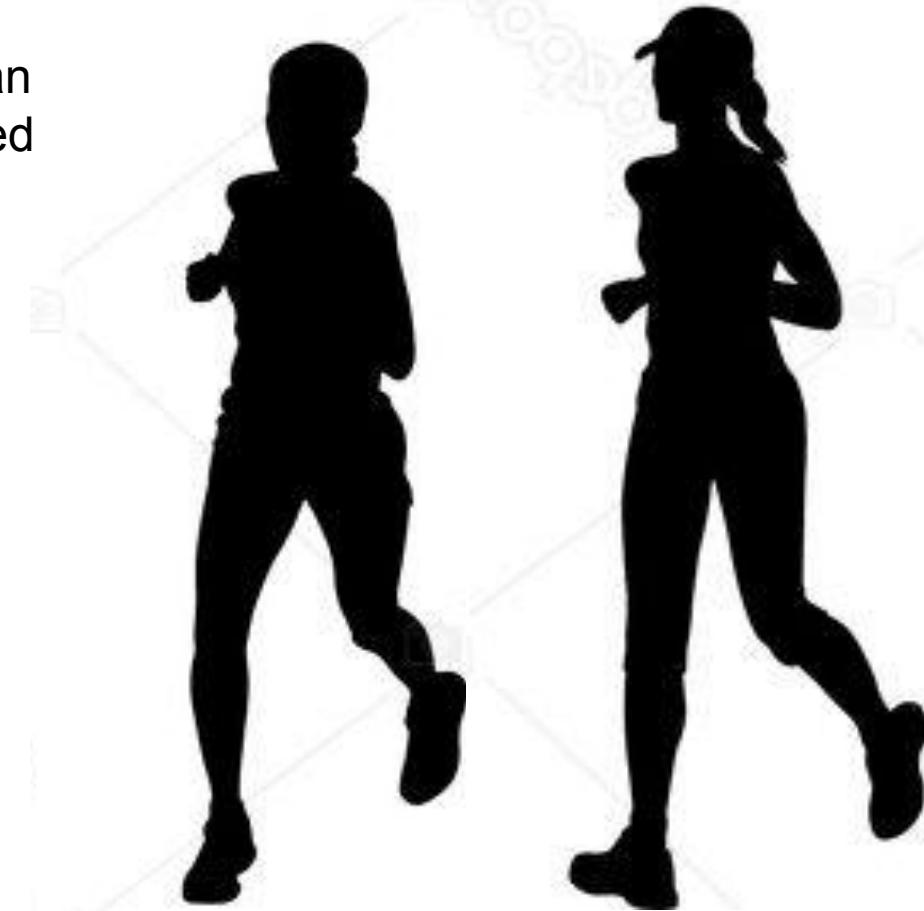

However, she was still not happy...I mean, she had no one to share her journey with, or talk to about fitness...

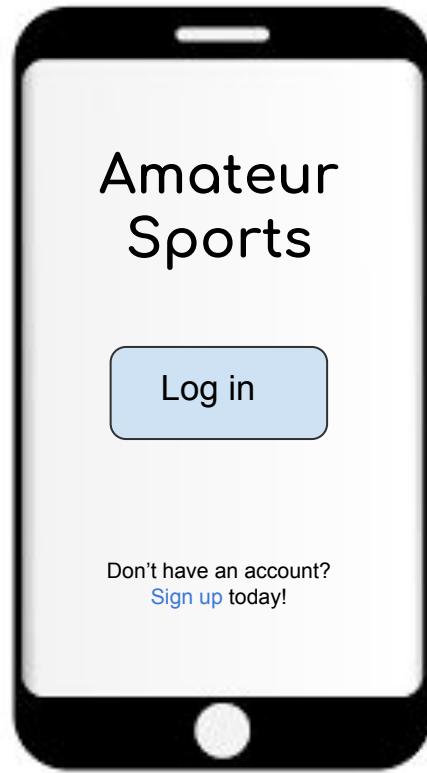

So, she'd decided to try going to the gym...

She eventually made some friends at the gym, and, one evening, whilst jogging with one of her friends, she mentioned an app she recently heard about and wanted to try out.

Curious about the app her friend had told her about, she decided she'd join along with her so they could meet others and have fun doing what they love.

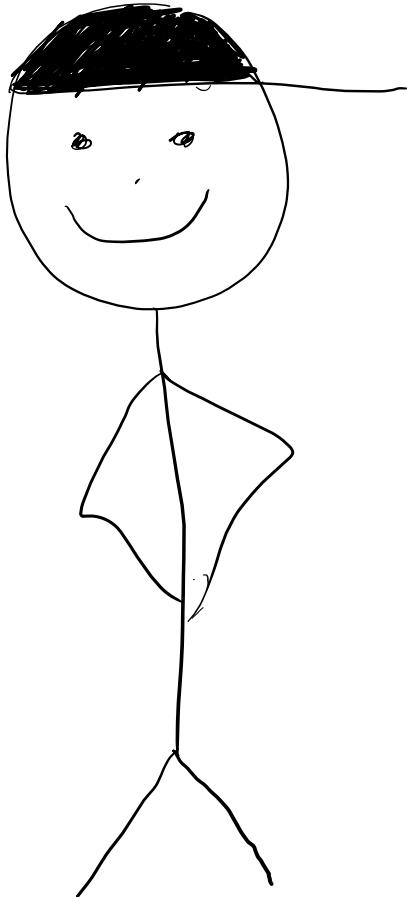

After a few months of using the app, Isabella has made so many more friends, created a team for her and her friends, and participated in some games against other teams as well. The team, “Rising Stars”, became much more than just Isabella and her friends, but several other women from her state. They play casually, but also, hope one day, they can start something professional. With their winning streak still running, I don’t think it’ll be long before that becomes a reality.

Storyboard

-Coach Charlie Cord

By: Stella Garcia

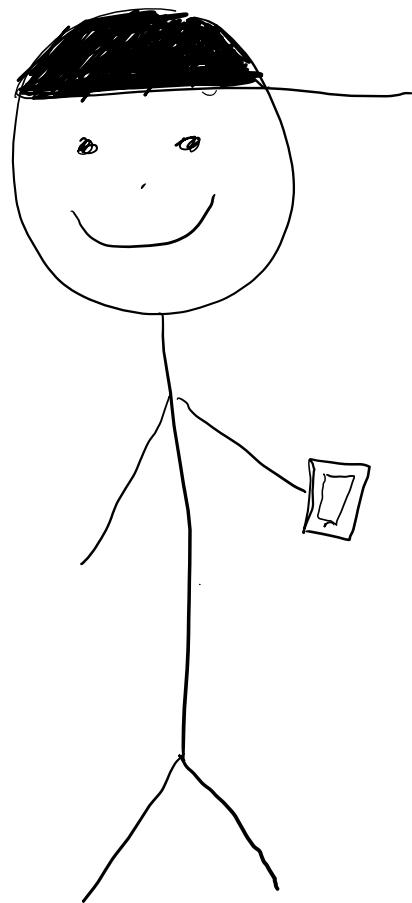

This is Coach Charlie Cord. He is a high school PE teacher in Columbia, South Carolina. He is married with 2 kids, and loves to exercise and, above all, he loves to win. His compleptive nature makes him very good at his job.

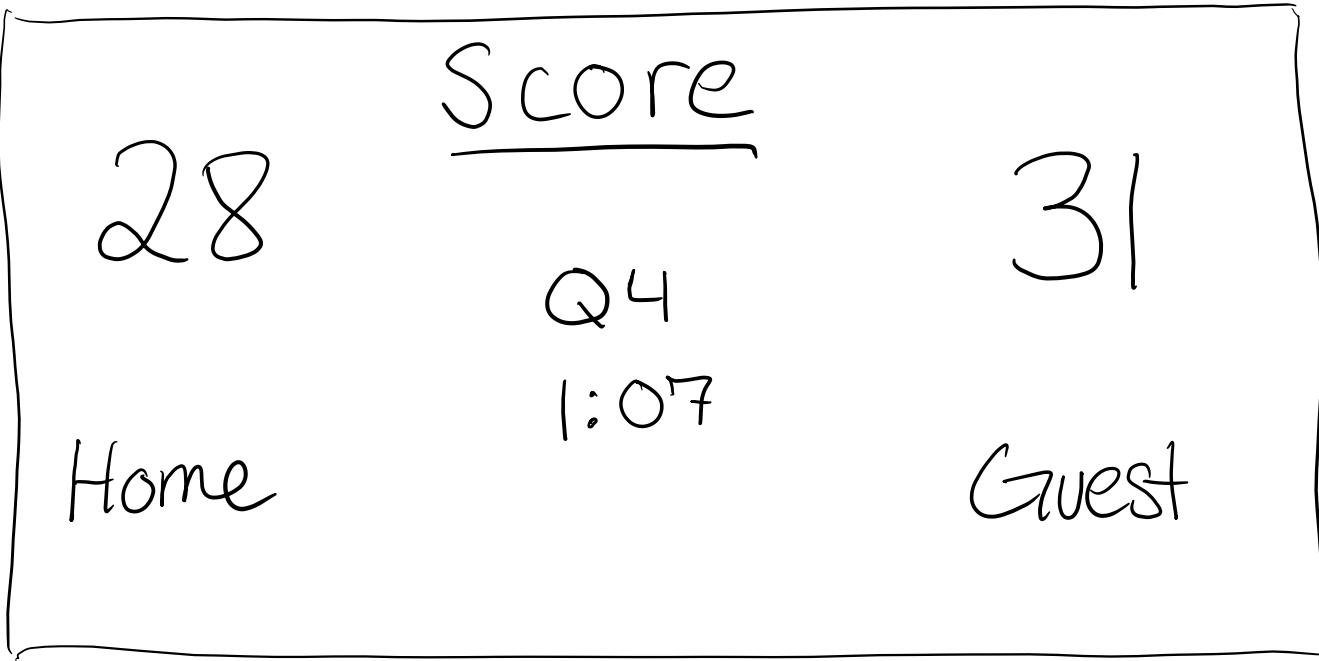

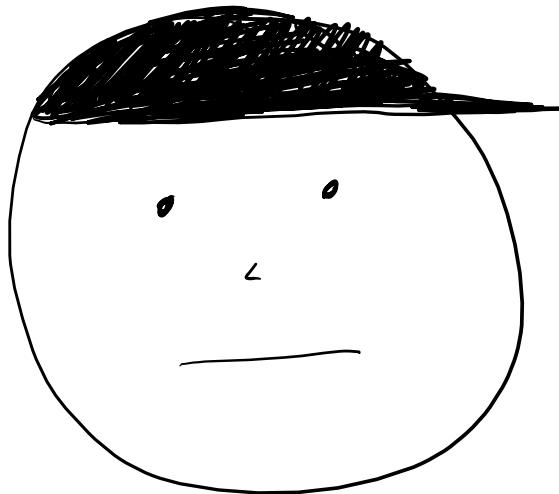

Coach's team is the best in the state, as they have gone undefeated ever since Coach took over. In fact, his team has never even come close to losing.

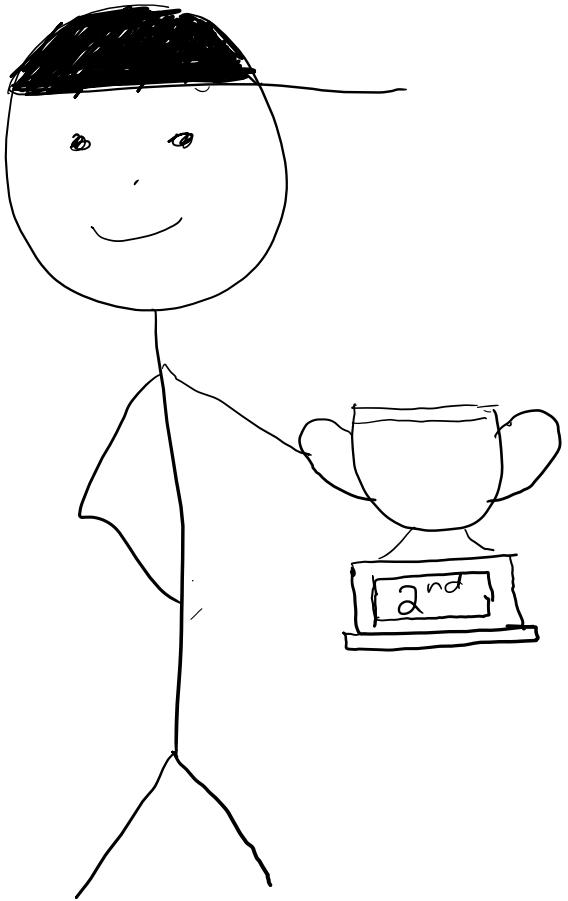

However, Coach has a dream. All the teams Coach plays against are no competition. His team works harder in practice than they do in the actual games. Coach loves to win, but he wants to play against competitive teams and earn his win.

Coach decided to use our app to connect with other competitive high school teams from outside his district. This way, his team can finally have a game not be a guaranteed win.

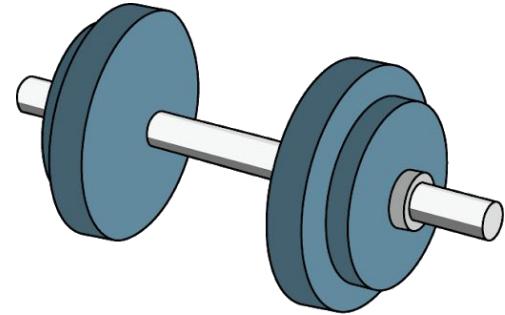

Coach was finally able to live out his dream, playing against a team that was actually a challenge. It made Coach push his team to work harder than they ever had before, even harder than in practice.

After a few games that were set up using our app, Coach had his first loss in his many years of coaching football. Even though Coach loves winning, it was the first game that Coach felt as he earned his place. Now, Coach has a new motivation to try harder and to beat his new rival team.

Josh Swayze Storyboard

Jake Gilstrap

This is Josh Swayze. He is a senior at San Diego State University. He firmly believes in a healthy lifestyle that balances both schoolwork, social life, and most importantly, exercise. Josh loves to play basketball as much as he can.

Josh works hard at a local diner. He stays on top of all his schoolwork and works out. His favorite thing to do in his free time is play basketball, but often, the University courts are empty and he has no one to play with. He does not want to join his school's club team because he is not very skilled.

Josh decides to download our app to connect with other people in the area that want to play, maybe not so competitively. He sets up his account and quickly finds many people like him looking for some friendly competition.

Josh is now connected with thousands of other people, from talented athletes to people just looking for play for fun. He joins a team of people that are at his skill level and quickly makes new friends.

Josh also picks up on some new sports including golf, baseball, and flag football. He and his teams schedule games about 2-3 times a week, and now Josh is never left to be lonely and play by himself.

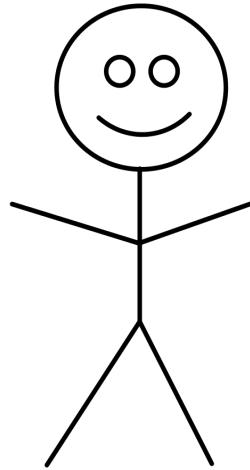

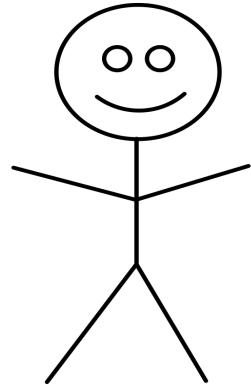

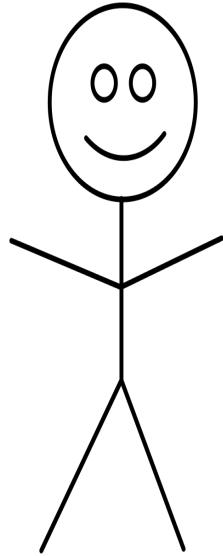

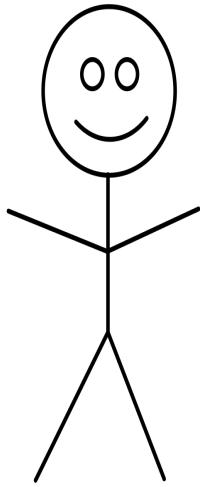

Through our app, Josh Swayze was able to become a part of multiple amateur sports teams and even go on to win a couple championships in his league. He has picked up new hobbies and made many new friends through competition. He is no longer bored often and has games to look forward to every week. Josh recommends the app for anyone looking to play almost any sport, regardless of skill level, and promises that users will make plenty of new friendships.

The Storyboard of Dale Jenkins

Made by Joshua Fugate

Dale gets off of work at 5:00 PM every day. He loves competition, and his love of sports has led him to playing pick-up games of basketball after work almost every day.

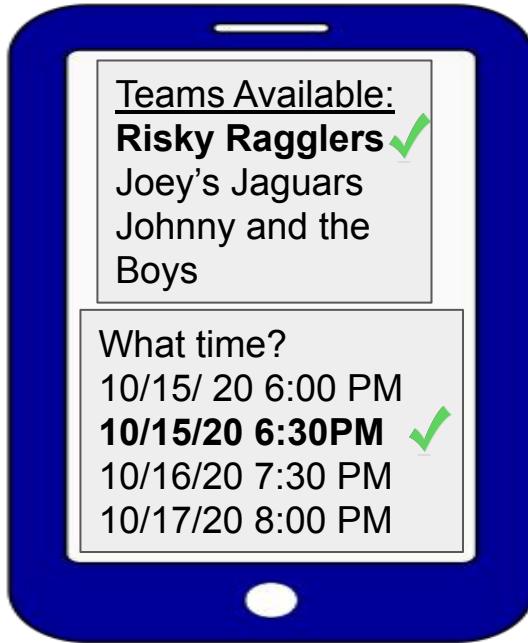

He usually finds himself playing with his 3 friends from college. As much as he and his friends enjoy this, they also want to explore new teams around the area to compete against.

Dale and his friends find out about a new app that connects amateur sports teams from local areas and decide to download it.

Dale selects his sport and his team's number of players, and he chooses to play against teams within a 15 mile radius from his town.

Dale chooses from a number of local teams available after viewing their profile for age and skill level. He then schedules a time that works for both teams.